You Don't Have To Wear Bifocals
VARILUX® COMFORT Seeing is believing.

It's tough to get the right loan.
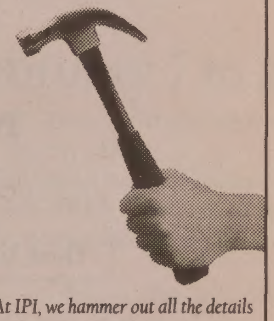
"You can tell they really know this process… that means I know I'm getting the best loan for me."

IPI introduces our One Step construction loan. Great rates. Zero points. Single closing.



At IPI, we hammer out all the details of our One Step construction loans up front — so you don't get hammered by unnecessary fees.

At IPI, we understand just how difficult it can be to buy land and to build your dream house. Typically, you'd start with a short-term land loan, then go to a construction loan and finally an "end loan" or conventional mortgage. And typically, you'd pay points or fees every step of the way. Not to mention the aggravation of separate closings.

Not anymore. IPI is proud to announce our One Step construction loan. It's the only zero-point, single-closing land/construction/end loan available that is underwritten entirely on site in our Main Street, Bridgehampton office. This comprehensive program offers you a single interest rate for all three phases of your project, from beginning to end. And most important, IPI locks in your interest rate—in advance, at no additional cost—for 12 months, not for 60 days like other brokers or banks.

We can offer innovative programs like our One Step construction loan because we've consolidated our loan officers, processors, underwriters and closers under one roof. Our experienced mortgage professionals represent more than 100 preferred lenders, so we can find the best possible program at the best possible price for you. And because IPI is the largest mortgage broker in the Northeast, you get the best of two worlds: New York big and Hamptons local.

Featherbed Blowout

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major departments stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also know as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

Residents Of North Haven Must Stay In Their Homes From February 7 to 28

By Dan Rattiner

A solution to the deer problem in North Haven is in the offing, courtesy of a wealthy South African industrialist who has recently bought a home here. It will be at no charge to the taxpayers.

The problem, as everyone knows, is that there are too many deer roaming through the woods of the peninsula, which extends four miles out from downtown Sag Harbor. Deer eat everyone's shrubbery, get hit by cars, and leap over the fences that everybody builds to keep them off of private property. A survey done from the air not long ago counted the deer population at 700. The entire human population on the peninsula is only 800.

"Why have you only brought male lions?"
"We wanted them to have only one thing on their minds."

Local realtors were very pleased last year when Hans Van der Klerk bought the old Kallen estate. It had been on the market for more than a year, but few wanted to put in bids.

Since it is six waterfront acres, including a main house, guest cottage and private dock, the asking price was quite high.

Van der Klerk, of Capetown, has parlayed several small silver and bauxite mines in the outback of South Africa into a conglomerate of more than twenty factories around the world, mining everything from boric acid to asphalt to gold to sand and gravel. Recently, in response to protests by environmentalists, he closed an asbestos mine in Tanzania, in spite of the fact it was quite profitable. He is retooling that mine to be able to separate out cobalt, which has been found in considerable abundance lying around on the site and which is in great demand by the nuclear power industry. Fortune Magazine has estimated der Klerk's net worth at one billion two.

Der Klerk bought the North Haven property sight unseen. Upon arrival here, he expressed astonishment at the crowds of deer that had broken through the fencing and were feasting on the lawn. He was even more astonished to find that a large number of the people in North Haven, considering the deer irresistably cute, were opposed to the thinning of the herd by the usual manner, which is shooting them dead. Due to their lobbying, hunting is illegal on North Haven.

Der Klerk's solution has been to bring seven male African lions from South Africa to North Haven. He plans to release them into the woods of North Haven next Monday.

"They are the natural predators of deer in South Africa," he told this reporter at a meeting at his house on Friday. "I have done the math. Based on the rate that these carnivores eat meat, the deer herd should be completely thinned in three weeks."

Der Klerk also had his attorney do some research. There is an ordinance in North Haven prohibiting the harboring of "wild animals," but in the list of such animals, there is mention of coyotes and American Mountain Lions, but not the South African Lion.

"It may have been an oversight," de Klerk grinned. "But I have a problem here and I am someone who solves problems."

The lions, each 800 to 1000 pounds, were caught in the Bagalok Section of South Africa using blow guns with darts that have been dipped in a sleeping potion. The lions were caged while asleep, flown

Westhampton's Susan Lucci did so well filling in for Bernadette Peters on Broadway in the lead role of Annie Get Your Gun that she has been asked to replace Peters when the latter leaves the show. Ms. Lucci is one of a number of telelvision stars – Robert Urich is another – whom Broadway producers have been courting to give their shows more pull at the box office.

Eric Clements, who works for Westhampton Glass, is a Field Representative for the planned National World War II Memorial that will be constructed in Washington D.C. Mr. Clements, who will be raising money for the memorial in a variety of ways, said, "It's the least we could do for the half million servicemen who sacrificed their lives so we could live in the society we live in." Mr. Clements can be contacted at 288-1727.

Rumor has it that Jerry Seinfeld is buyingan oceanfront home in Quogue.

DUMBO, the residential real estate gamble headed up by David Walentas, of Two Trees Farm in Bridgehampton, has become a roaring success. The several square block waterfront development Down Under the Manhattan Bridge Overpass (DUMBO, get it?) has sold out its centerpiece Clock Tower apartment building for a total exceeding $70 million. Walentas is keeping the 15th floor penthouse apartment for himself. It offers a full 360 degree view of the City through the four clock faces.

Sagapônack's Kurt Vonnegut almost got to watch the end of this year's superbowl game, but not quite. He was in his Manhattan apartment watching it on TV when he went downstairs for a bit to talk to his wife, photographer Jill Krementz and their son. Soon, neighbors noticed flames in the upstairs window, perhaps caused by a cigarette that Vonnegut had left in an ashtray, and they called the fire department. Kurt raced upstairs to put it out with a blanket and received minor injuries, but spent some time in New York-Presbyterian being treated for smoke inhalation thus missing the dramatic ending. The Rams won.

The powerful head of the New York State Democratic Party, Judith Hope of East Hampton, has endorsed Democratic incumbent Michael Forbes of Quogue in his attempt to return to Washington as this area's Congressman. Forbes has been a Republican, originally a Gingrich Republican, for years, but has leaned further and further to the left until he renounced Republicanism and embraced the Democratic party last August. Judith Hope was an East Hampton Town Supervisor in the 1970s.

to Kennedy Airport, and then taken by boat to der Klerk's private dock on Wednesday. Currently they are being housed in the der Klerk garage, built by the late Mr. Kallen for his seventeen antique car collection.

"Why have you only brought male lions?" this reporter asked.

"We wanted them to only have one thing on their minds."

"What happens after three weeks?"

"The lions will be caught, they should be well fed and lazy by that time, and returned to South Africa."

Der Klerk, is delaying the releasing of the lions until Monday so he can get the word out – Dan's is not the only newspaper he has contacted – and because the school children will be on vacation.

"The lions, like the deer, are nocturnal animals," Der Klerk told me, "and at seven a.m. when the school busses pick the children up by the side of the road, it is still dark."

Der Klerk also pointed out that because the bridge to Sag Harbor is being replaced, there is no way to get off North Haven and residents in the rest of the Hamptons should not worry.

"You can get off North Haven by taking Long Beach Road to Noyac," I told Der Klerk.

He seemed surprised, "Noyac? Where's that?"

This reporter spoke to Emmett Greengrocer, the President of the East End Environmental Group (EEEG), who often spoken out against desecrating the land and the wanton shooting of the wildlife.

"It sounds like this has been thought through," Greengrocer said. "Prey and predator. Survival of the fittest. Lions are beautiful creatures. This is the stuff we have been talking about for a long, long time. Somebody has finally heard us."

A spokesman for the village spoke on condition of anonymity and said that village officials were beside themselves at this recent development.

"The law has been checked. South African lions are not mentioned. They are not mentioned in the list of animals specifically prohibited from running wild either. We have attornies working on this twenty-four hours a day."

In any case, residents of North Haven are urged to stay indoors from February 7 to February 28 while the lions are loose. ●

Back To The Future

If I'd Known 2000 Would Be Such A Nothing I'd Have Looked Forward To It Differently

By Dan Rattiner

It's now been one month since the turn of the millennium and I must say, so far, it's been a real disappointment. The first day, New Year's day, was pretty much like any other day. Two days later, on Monday, people went to work just like they did the few days before New Year's day, and then that whole week, a lot of people died. All around the country, the death rate soared with a whole lot of older people, apparently hanging on to get through the millennium to the first week of the year 2000, giving up the ghost and passing away, because it was just like any other week.

> I found writing two zeros up in the corner of my checkbook a little demeaning. Two zeros are exactly that, a whole lot of nothing.

At least, that was the explanation that psychologists said. "It's a testament to the human spirit," said a TV commentator.

So much had been expected from the passing of 1999 to the year 2000. Computers would crash; planes would bump into one another and explode, entire countries were supposed to be thrown back into the dark ages. In fact, the federal government even had a list of countries, about forty of them, which you were suposed to stay away from after the turn of the year. There were all sorts of other gloom and doom predicted for the year 2000. The economy would crash; the Lord would arise and exact his revenge. Technicolor would turn to black and white and it would start raining dogs and cats.

Banks were expecting a great run on money. Before New Year's Eve, more than forty billion dollars in cash was brought into Long Island from the United States Treasury in Washington. Now, after the turn of the year, all this excess money had to be bundled up and taken by armored car back to Fort Knox. People woke up on the morning of the year 2000, bottled water and batteries and flashlights in place just as they had been told and things were just like they always were.

Furthermore, frankly, I found writing two zeros up in the corner of my checkbook a little demeaning. Two zeros are exactly that, a whole lot of nothing. (Like my checkbook.) It wasn't like a robust 99 or 98 or 97. Indeed, I've taken to calling this year the double naughts, as in, can you tell me when your credit card expires and the reply is 0-6-double naught.

I think as far as I am concerned, some of this disappointment comes from all the time beforehand that I spent thinking about reaching the millennium. When I was a little boy, it just seemed so far away. And when I was a teenager in the 1950s, I would look ahead and do the math. Would I make it to the year 2000? I'd be sixty years old. Probably, yes, but, possibly, no. I could get hit by a truck in 1974 and be lying there, things slowly going to black, thinking, oh, if only this hadn't happened I could reach the year 2000.

In the early 1960s, I read what the future would be like, according to George Orwell. It was in his bestselling book, 1984, and it was a grim place indeed with people spying on each other and history being written and rewritten. It would be a dark time. I'd be an old man by 1984, at least forty anyway, and my hair would be falling out and turning gray, and I'd huff and puff when I'd run up a hill. By the year 2000 I'd be positively ancient, dottering around with a cane at the age of sixty. Would I appreciate the fact that I had gotten to this remarkable time?

Woman Who Removed Her Top At Last Year's St. Patrick's Day Parade Is Sentenced

By Dan Rattiner

The biggest event of the winter out here on the East End is undoubtedly the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Montauk. There is also one in Westhampton also, either a week before or a week after the Montauk parade and I don't want to say anything bad against Westhampton, but it pales in comparison to what happens in Montauk.

There are usually about 200 floats, a total which takes almost two hours to pass the reviewing stand. The thing is usually kicked off by a squadron of fighter planes which roar over Montauk at a very low altitude. Either that, or if the weather is good, which it usually isn't, a bunch of sky divers, who leap out of a single engine plane to land on the town green.

Why 10,000 people stream out to Montauk in the middle of March is one of those absurdly unanswerable questions. Not only is the temperature as low as ten or fifteen degrees outside, but Montauk, for some reason, is the windiest place on Long Island. In the summer, this is good, because even on one hundred degree days you do not need air conditioning in the town, just open a window, which is why the town is so popular among tourists. But in the winter, the wind speed doubles or triples. If it is plus ten in East Hampton and the rest of Long Island, it is maybe minus 20 windchill on the day of the parade and you have to stand around for two or three hours all bundled up.

Except, of course, if you are in a thong bikini, sitting in a hot tub on the back of a converted Ford pickup limousine as part of a float in the parade, which is what Merrin Kerrins did last year. What she did that day is a public relations dream for the parade and may account – if the promoters handle things properly – for an increase in the number of spectators attending the parade this year to maybe 5,000.

Merrin Kerrins, who is twenty-six, was hired by Mark Henig of Deer Park to sit in the open air hot tub in the back of one of his limousines during the parade. Henig is the owner of Bob Mark Limousines and he said later, "She was supposed to be just sitting back there."

As I said, it takes a long time for the parade route to pass any one spot and there is a lot of stopping and jostling among the parade entrants. Merrin Kerrins sat in the hot tub for the better part of an hour, passing the cheering throngs of spectators along both sides of the route and then, just as the limo passed the town green and the reviewing stand with all the dignitaries sitting there, she apparently got carried away with the excitement of the moment and whipped off her green and white thong bikini top and shook herself happily at the dignitaries.

The crowd howled and yelled for her to do it again and so she did. After that she slunk back into the hot bubbling water and arrived at the point where you disembark from the line of the parade to find the limousine owner Mark Henig quite agitated that she had done that but hopeful that it all would blow over

It didn't.

A month later, two mothers who had watched the parade with their small children filed complaints with the East Hampton Town police about Ms. Kerrins' behavior and the police found her in Deer Park and served her with papers charging her with indecent exposure. The misdemeanor charge could be punishable by fifteen days in jail and a $250 fine.

> ...carried away with the excitement of the moment, she whipped off her green and white thong bikini top...

Future

Beginning about 1988, and we had passed 1984 without any Big Brother or dictatorship or anything showing up, I stumbled upon something that would, all be itself, determine how I would spend New Year's eve for 2000.

It was at a Saturday afternoon yachting regatta in Sag Harbor and I stood on Long Wharf, and the wind blew and the sailboats hoved into view and at exactly four o'clock, with a thunderous roar, a cannon was fired.

This happened every Saturday, I was told. The race is always announced by the firing of a ten gauge salute cannon.

This cannon was right there on the dock, about eleven inches long, a miniature Civil War looking thing, made out of brass with a string on the back you could pull to make it fire. The following year, I bought such a cannon at the Nautique Boat Accessory store in Aquabogue and I mounted it with strong steel screws on the railing of the fence that kept people from falling off the front deck of my house to the lawn.

My cannon faced out into Three Mile Harbor, where the sun set beyond the far shore over the boats rocking back and forth. Occasionally, I'd fire it just as the sun would set, a blank cartridge, of course, but a great puff smoke would emerge and there was little doubt on the part of those who were startled by the sound from whence the shot had come. I really thought that the neighbors might object to my firing the salute cannon at sunset, but none ever did and as a courtesy, I never fired it at any other time and in fact took to firing it only once a week, or sometimes, two evenings in a row and then not again for a month. Over the years I like to think that my cannon shot has become a part of living on the harbor. Certainly, so it would seem.

From the very beginning I had in my mind that I would fire this cannon when New Year's eve came for the turn of the year 2000. At first I thought, this would be just one cannon shot, but then as I thought about it over the weeks and months and years that followed, I realized it would have to be a little more than that in order to separate it from the other times it was fired. Keep in mind that this was in 1988 that I got the cannon. Talk about planning ahead.

As the millennium approached, and people began asking the perennial question how I intend to spend the millennium, I had an answer. I'm not going to be spending fifteen thousand dollars for one night at a luxury hotel in Equador, I'm not going to fly to New Zealand or Antarctica or Fiji or any of those places that began to advertise themselves as the start of the new dawn of the new millennium. I'm going to spend it at home and at midnight, fire the cannon.

Indeed, by this time, I knew exactly how this would happen. As the minutes would be counted down, I would put on Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture at the end where, as the music rose to a climax, the cannon would be repeatedly fired. I would turn the volume up. At midnight, I would shake the whole harbor. As for the rest of the house, it would be lit up in the most elaborate display of Christmas lights imaginable, a center of the universe where energy and lightning bolts could descend from the heavens to baptize the world with light and cannon fire. We'd have people over and raise a glass of champagne, although, how I'd raise a glass of champagne and do quick firings of the cannon at the same time, I never quite worked out.

As New Year's Eve approached however, the evening turned into something far more, well, sacrificial. We have four almost grown young men living at our house, children, who are fifteen, sixteen, seventeen and twenty-two. And if my plan was to make our home energy central, it was Cathie's plan to give this evening to these kids and make it energy central to them. We allowed them to invite all their friends over, whomever they wanted, and they could play music loud and it would be a party they would never forget. We would chaperone it.

Early on December 31, we began getting telephone calls from the parents of our children's friends. Are we really having a party? Are we really going to be chaperoning it? We bought all sorts of chips and cokes and set this stuff up in the downstairs rec room. We stayed upstairs, occasionally, going down to check things out. The kids

JUNIOR KROLL™
BY BETTY PARASKEVAS AND MICHAEL PARASKEVAS

Junior Kroll's cousin, Honey Duff,
Came to stay with all her stuff.
In minutes, Honey found a pair
Of high-heel shoes and a hat to wear.
The part of Honey Duff between
The hat and the shoes could hardly be seen.
Monkey see, Monkey do!
Whatever Junior did, Honey did too.
Junior said, "Stop it, Honey!"
Honey said, "-TOP IT, HONEY!"
Junior Kroll stuck out his tongue;
Honey did too and landed among
The flowers on Mom's hibiscus plant.
"UNER PUSH ME," She began to chant.
Mrs. Kroll uprooted her potted behind.
"She made me do it," Junior whined.
Tearfully eyeing each broken bloom,
Mrs. Kroll said, "Junior! GO TO YOUR ROOM!"
For three days the war raged on.
Mrs. Kroll patience was almost gone.
Then Aunt Jane returned for Honey Duff
In her little fur coat and her little fur muff.
They waited for Honey to say good bye.
But instead, "Wanna Stay," she began to cry.
"OH, pleeeeeas!" cried Junior, "Just one more day."
Mrs. Kroll watched Aunt Jane drive away.
And there was Junior trying to teach
His cousin Honey how to reach
The end of her nose with the tip of her tongue.
Poor Mrs. Kroll's nerves were unstrung.
She wondered when her hibiscus would bloom.
Well, not before Junior went back to his room.

Will we be getting more oil from sources like the Alaska pipeline, and possibly bring down fuel prices?

A Closer Look

Why Have Fuel Prices Nearly Doubled On The East End In Just One Week?

By Jerry Cimisi

For the past week or so the high price of heating oil has been the subject of heated (no pun intended) debate, fingerpointing – and depleted pocketbooks.

Indeed, it's a matter that hits nearly everybody's pocket. A company that delivered one hundred gallons of heating oil earlier in January for over $100 and change, delivers a hundred gallons the last week of the month and charges over $179.

A random survey of fuel delivery services on the East End found that during the last week in January prices ranged from $1.85 a gallon to $1.99.

And yet only the previous week prices were in $1.25-$1.40 per gallon range.

To make matters worse, the weather the last two weeks of the month was extremely bitter with temperatures often below twenty and wind chills at night often below zero. We have not seen a stretch of weather like this for four years, since the winter of 1996.

Assemblymen Fred Thiele met with New York State Attorney General Elliot Spitzer and asked him to begin an investigation regarding price gouging against the wholesalers of home heating oil. In a press release Theile said, "As soon as the weather gets cold, the greedy and amoral petroleum wholesalers swoop in and use their oligopolistic market power to gouge the consumer. There is no way that a 75 cent per gallon increase is the result of legitimate market forces." Oligopolistic refers to the acts by those who are the few controlling a market that affects the many.

In a phone interview, Thiele said, "You definitely can't blame the local companies. They are for the most part mom and pop businesses, many who have been around for years. They can't control the prices of the distributors."

Thiele said that in 1998 the State Legislature "clarified and strengthened the State Price Gouging Law in response to ice storms that had paralyzed the Adirondacks." The law is meant as a check on any party selling or distributing goods necessary to public, health, safety and welfare. "The state prohibits unconscionable price increases where there is a change of market conditions occasioned by stress of weather."

Kevin M. Rooney, of the Oil Heat Institute of Long Island, said the recent increases "were of a magnitude of which I've never seen in the eighteen years I've been here. From January 14 to the 21st the wholesale price went up 72 cents per gallon."

The fact, is, as Rooney said, there was enough of a reserve in New York and on Long Island to meet the increased demands of the recent bitter weather. "Just enough, but it was there," he said.

So what is going on? Who, exactly, is to blame?

One first looked toward OPEC. The Middle East consortium decided last April, when most of us were not thinking of heating oil prices, to sharply cut back production, resulting in a price increase. From $9.80 a barrel, the price now stands at $28.50 a barrel. (A barrel holds 42 gallons.) Oil prices from the Mid East have not been so high since the Gulf War crisis of late 1990 and early '91 when the price per barrel was in the $40 range.

At the same time, oil from Texas and Alaska, which had been about $12 per barrel rose proportionately. (When asked why oil from the U.S. costs more than importing it from the Mid East or, say, Venezuela. Rooney said, "It costs more to bring it up out of the water of the Gulf of Mexico than from the sand of Saudi Arabia.")

But, added Rooney, these increases really were not to blame for the recent astronomical increases. "Before this heating oil season these costs had been factored in." Rooney laid most of the blame on the outrageous increase of one week on Brooklyn Union's "interruptible customers."

He said, "In New York and on Long Island, the gas company has what are called interruptible customers: when the temperature goes below fifteen degrees, whether actual temperature or wind chill factor, these customers have to shift from gas to oil. We are talking about the New York City school system, the New York Housing Authority, Co-Op City, Lefrak City, Rikers, the Tombs; on Long Island there is the Roosevelt Field mall, Walt Whitman Mall, Smithaven Mall, school districts and Newsday. So when you have all these huge users of energy suddenly coming into the heating fuel oil market, and all in twenty-four hours. This puts a demand of about another three and a half million gallons a week on the Long Island market, and when you have such a huge increase in demand in such a short time, it is the price that gives."

The Oil Heat Institute of Long Island is a trade association of retailers. Like Assemblyman Thiele, Rooney also pointed the finger at the wholesalers.

Who's Here:

Donna McCue

Psychic

By Joan Zandell

Donna McCue believes that the hand reflects "life's most precious passage, the journey to the self." In her most recent book Your Fate Is In Your Hands, she reveals that we all have the potential to access and utilize our natural psychic abilities, and we hold this power in the palm of our hands.

How did her journey begin? As one of eight children in Syracuse, she would simply "know" that certain things would happen. When she was four years old she "knew" that her father would return a day early from a business trip, despite the fact that he did not call alert the family. Then she "knew" that the man living across the street would suffer a heart attack. Three days later he did. Her mother asked, "How did she know?" All Donna could say was that she didn't know how she knew, she just did.

Early in her life her gifts separated her from others. In addition to growing up in a tense and abusive family environment and being overweight, it was just one more thing that added to her feelings of alienation. One fateful day on her way to a meeting with a cold and unsympathetic social worker to discuss her abusive situation at home, who inevitably told Donna to "go home and be a good girl," she was drawn instead to a palm reader. Unlike the social worker, the palm reader was warm and compassionate and seemed genuinely interested in Donna's well being. And most importantly, the reading gave Donna hope. Donna never returned to the social worker, whereas her interest in palm reading began as well as honoring her own psychic abilities.

Among the things that Donna "knew" was that she was going to be a movie star. When she was eighteen the opportunity presented itself. Viva, a local Syracuse girl, star of Andy Warhol's films and a staple in Warhol's Factory, invited Donna to look her up when she came to New York. Well, Donna did.

Viva had a part in a movie at the time. The film was Midnight Cowboy directed by John Schlesinger. Her first day on the set, Donna introduced herself to Schlesinger and told him that she wanted to be a movie star. He responded, "Well, I think you should be too!" and sent her off to wardrobe. By the following day, she had a speaking part . Her intuition had been correct! Unfortunately, she ended up on the cutting room floor, yet in a way, her dream of stardom had been realized. It would take a bit longer before she could learn to depend on her psychic ability.

"When something comes to you so easily and naturally, you tend not to appreciate it. I couldn't really claim and appreciate what I came into the universe to do – instead I struggled with things that were very hard. As soon as I went for what was natural, that was when I became successful." She went on to say, "I tell my clients to go for the things that are easy, the things that feel effortless, because I think that God wants us not to struggle."

"I think that we're here to serve others and before you can serve, you have to know the truth about yourself. Writing this book was a difficult and painful journey for me. But I am glad that I had the fortitude and perseverance to complete it. And I am grateful for all the support I had along the way."

In Your Fate Is Is Your Hands, Donna details how to identify the various markings and aspects of our own hands, from the heart lines, life lines and head lines to the significant chains, islands, triangles, thin fingers, and bent thumbs. She identifies the tools to better understand our past, our personalities, and to transform our future. With these basics as a foundation, she describes how to use the principles of palmistry, including, truth, desire, gratitude, and service, to change our destiny and bring us closer to the meaning and purpose of our own lives. For example, the lines of the hand change every three to six months depending on the changes in one's life. Donna believes that it is possible to transform negative lines through positive thoughts and actions. Not surprisingly, she believes that you can overcome fate by maximizing your potential.

"Consider me a psychic cheerleader for the soul who can give voice to your longings," she says. "Unlike other clairvoyants, my area of expertise focuses on relationships, finance and life paths. We are each born with a purpose, headed on a path. It's easy to veer far enough away from the path to convince ourselves that we can't see it. But it's there. I help you to understand what is stopping you from getting what you want."

Donna's longing for service extends to the East End community of which she is a part. In June, she paid a visit to Springs Public School in East Hampton, where she had the children make prints of their palms. She then read them pointing out and writing down the children's special attributes, such as "sensitive to the feelings of others," "good ethics," and "ability to do well in sports." In a thank you letter to Donna, the class's teacher writes that "The children's faces light up with excitement, and they enjoy telling each other about their own personal strengths. It's rewarding to hear a child say they are proud of themselves."

Donna has two sons, the youngest of whom has inherited her clairvoyance. She sees it and honors it, a gift that she was denied in her own childhood. How is her family adjusting to her national success? "They've been so supportive and are just so delighted with my success." Donna lights up when recounting seeing herself on national television. She claims that the success of her book has made her "humble." She is filled with gratitude towards all the people who are reading her book and coming to her book signings. "I want to empower the readers to know that the gifts that I have, they can have too."

Donna is a good storyteller and she particularly likes to tell the story of how she and her husband met, so much so that it has become part of the McCue family lore. "I read his hand and the first thing I blurted out was, you're going to marry me!" Without blinking an eye he answered, "If I'm going to marry you, perhaps we should have dinner first." Two years later they were married.

Over the years, Donna has read the hands of many celebrities and artists, such as Willem de Kooning, Salvador Dali, William Styron and Faith Popcorn. She has worked as a consultant for the East Hampton Vice Squad and the FBI, she has appeared at corporate events hosted by Time Warner, Conde Nast, McCall's, Harper's Bazaar, and The New York Times and has given seminars and workshops for companies including HBO and Merrill Lynch. During the Merrill Lynch dinner she found herself, much to her own surprise, telling at least forty of the attendees that she saw them leaving their jobs. Only days later Black Tuesday descended, and aggressive downsizing began. Unfortunately for the brokers, her predictions had come true. Donna has also hosted a live, call-in public television show called Psychically Speaking for a number of years. In the early nineties, Donna was the numerology and astrology writer for Hamptons Magazine; recently she was featured in the September 1999 issue of Self magazine. Donna presently gives corporate and private sector workshops and seminars, geared towards helping others to get in touch with their intuitive abilities through a series of simple interactive exercises. She has just completed a national book tour promoting her book Your Fate Is In Your Hands and you can visit her on her own website, http://www.donnamccue.com.

As Donna sat in my living room I was unable to resist the temptation to have her look at my palm. At the end of our interview I summoned the courage to ask. She was only too happy to oblige. If a year from now I am happily ensconced in connubial bliss you'll know that her predictions were correct. I'll be checking my palm every so often just to see if I'm on the right track. •

"It's the guys who buy the oil from the refineries that upped the price. The company that delivers fuel to you is paying right now about $1.38-$1.40 per gallon."

Rooney went on: "We wanted to get legislation passed that Brooklyn Union (which is also Key Span) not be allowed to take on new customers if it cannot service the customers it has in all weathers. Or, at the very least, have the gas company's interruptible customers be required to have large reserves on hand so that if they go off gas for a stretch they are not coming onto the oil market overnight.

"And were are not talking about making it better for a minority: on Long Island, seventy percent of the homes are heated by oil, so when the price goes up because Brooklyn Union can't service its customers, the people who are not on gas have to suffer. It is obvious this isn't fair."

KeySpan, the parent company of Brooklyn Union (and also LIPA) responded in kind. Andrea Staub, a spokeswoman for Brooklyn Union, said that interruptible customers choose this arangement so they can get a cheaper price on gas. If there is a mild winter (as it has been the previous three winters) it is a very good deal for them. Ms. Staub asserted that Brooklyn Union had enough product to service every one of its customers even if none opted for interruptible service.

"This a program that has been in effect for decades. It is approved by the public service commission. We have 1.6 million customers; about a half million are on Long Island. We have only about 600 interruptible customers. They may be large users, but they cannot, overall, effect the supply of gas." She also added that Walt Whitman and Roosevelt Field Mall did not have all of their stores on interruptible service.

"On January 27, there was a meeting of the Suffolk County Legislature's Committee on Consumer Protection and Government Operations in Hauppague. KeySpan Senior Vice President said "The oil industry purchased 35% less product than just one year ago. It is apparent that the oil industry was not prepared for a normal winter. They gamlbed on the possibility of having another warm season. This time they lost only at the expense of their customers."

At any rate, it appeared there were enough reserves in the NY-LI area to meet the increased demand. Certainly there is no anecdotal evidence that any fuel company has said to a customer "We don't have enough fuel to deliver to you." At the worst, because of the cold weather and the increased demand, fuel companies delivered a bit later than the customers might have liked, though all the companies it seemed made it a priority to deliver first to customers who were in danger of running out of heat. Indeed, it seemed that fuel deliveries were going almost round the clock. Last week, I noted a fuel truck making a delivery just before midnight to a house in Noyac.

There had been talk that President Clinton was going to release a portion of the Strategic Oil Reserves (SOR) into local markets that were suffering high price increases or shortages. Actually, although the president undoubtedly could make the final call on the matter, it comes under the purview of the Secretary of Energy, Bill Richardson. What did happen was that Richardson released monies that will help low income people who are on assistance programs such as HEAP (Home Energy Assistance Program). Rooney of the Oil Heat Institute said that while it was certainly good that low income families and individuals will receive more help with their fuel bills (about $45 million worth), the middle income and lower middle income need help, too.

Tom Welch, a spokesman for the Department of Energy said that the DOE is increasing supplies in its reserve, with the possibility of releasing them into the market. Richardson has also directed that the Energy Information Administration (EIA) closely monitor home heating oil markets, especially in the northeast. The EIA usually publishes data on home heating oil prices every two weeks; Richardson has ordered them to do it every week until the current high prices come back down to a reasonable level.

As this is written, above freezing temperatures are forecast for the first week of February. Will that bring fuel prices down? With many items, a steep price increase over a short period of time does usually comes down, but often not to the level it was before the price climbed so high. •

The Sheltered Islander

By Sally Flynn

Observations of a New Islander #92

Snow Day: To Rise or Not to Rise

Tuesday, January 25 6:30 a.m. My annoying loud alarm goes off. I stumble to the bathroom, grab my hairbrush, brush out my mane and twist it up into my signature power bun. Splash cold water on my face, grab a trowel and apply moisturizer. My eyes look out the window and in the dim morning light I see it, snow, and it's coming down heavy. Now begins a mother's torment, will the school close for a snow day or not?

6:45 a.m I start the coffee and turn on 101.7, WBAZ ("Your Light on the Bay").

Ted Schreiber, the sweetest voice on radio, will know. He knows everything. He'll tell me if Shelter Island School is closed. Ted discusses traffic as he watches me dress, that devil... I sit at the table to drink my coffee, grab the paint roller and start putting on make-up.

7:00 a.m. The hour of reckoning is here. To wake the kids or not wake the kids? Technically, I should wake them and get them ready for school unless I hear otherwise from Ted when he reads the school closings. But I got distracted and missed my letter in the alphabet and now Ted is in the "T's"! Damn!

7:10 a.m. I'm now sheepishly dialing the station. I'm too embarassed to say it's Sally from Shelter Island again, because I do this whenever it snows. So I call and say I'm Mary from Shelter Island, certainly a different name will throw him.

"No, I haven't heard from Shelter Island yet. We go through this everytime 'Mary.'"

7:15 a.m. My sainted mother, who lives in a near permanent state of Novena because of my columns, calls. She just heard it on WLNG, Shelter Island School is closed. I breathe a sigh of relief. I don't have to get THEM up and I can go back to bed.

"You should listen to WLNG, I think they get the closings first," she says.

7:20 a.m. I'm up now, so I continue applying my special effects make-up, guaraunteed to deflect any sunlight that might age, or reveal the age, of my face. I keep listening to my Teddy Baz on WBAZ. Mother just doesn't understand. I can't leave just him for another disc jockey, not after all we've been through together. Weather, traffic, local events and on special days, we have school closings Ted and I. When I call the station – I'm sure I missed the announcement in my morning haze – it's Ted who answers.

He's all alone like me. Forced to get up at God knows what hour and drive in the cold and dark to the radio station, just to be there when I turn him on in the morning.

7:30 a.m I climb back into bed and turn Ted off. The house is still quiet, I hope to get a few extra winks.

7:31 a.m. The phone rings. "Hi it's Jody, it's a snow day ! Can I talk to Shenoah? Maybe we can... blah... blah... blah."

"We're still alseep here honey, call later."

7:45 a.m. The phone rings again. Is it another of my pre-teen daughter's friends? Is it my mother? Is it Ed McMahon, have I won the million? Is it Ted? Is he fed up with me calling him whenever it snows? Is he leaving me for another station?

"Hello, it's Ashley. Is Shenoah up? It's a snow day!"

Five Years Ago

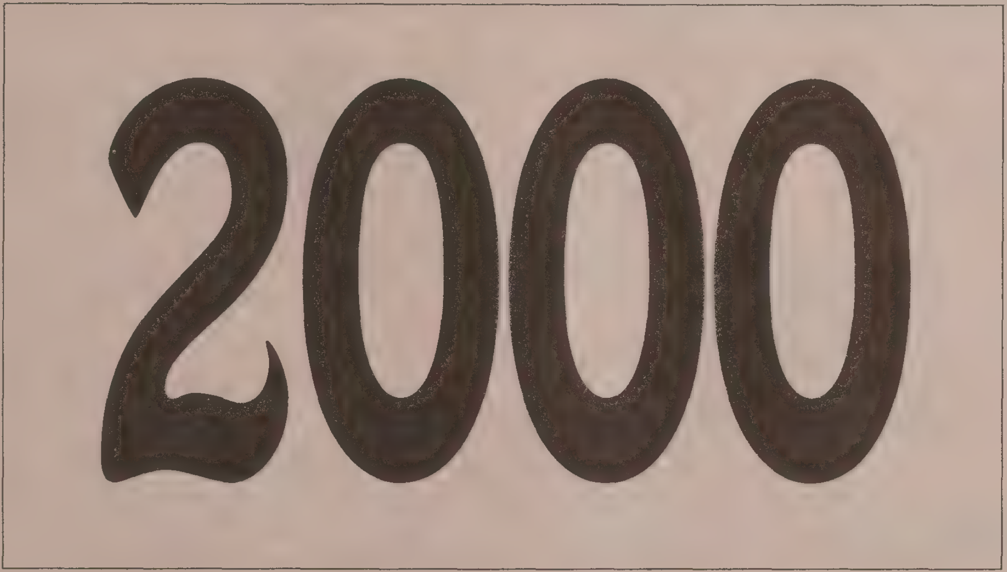
"Two Thousand One"

February 3, 1995

Everybody is talking about the year 2000. It's a big deal. The electronic highway should be in full operation by the year 2000. One tenth of all the cars produced in America are to be electric by the year 2000. The damage to the ozone layer should peak in the year 2000. Perhaps we will have a cure for cancer by the year 2000.

All this talk and planing about the year 2000 is a recent thing. Ten years ago we were in the midst of the "eighties" and when 1990 came we were now in the "nineties."

Why are we all suddenly excited about the year 2000? Well, as near as I can figure, when it got to be around 1993 it began to look like it was just over the horizon. Before that we really couldn't plan for it. But by 1993 we all collectively began to realize that we could indeed plan. That indeed whatever we started to put together for the magical year 2000 could actually have some reality to it.



All of this seems to point to the fact that people consider their lives in chunks of five or six years. We all know the vicissitudes and unexpected turns life can take. Beyond five or six years people tend to say "I really have no idea what I'll be doing ten years from now." Give them five years to chew on and they are willing to plan, to take a chance.

Personally, I noticed this phenomenon when I took a trip to Hong Kong. This was in 1977 and it was the first and only time I ever went to that city. First of all, I was amazed at the place. Hong Kong has a skyline like Manhattan. There are buildings seventy and eighty stories high. The cost and value of all this incalculable.

I remember at the time back in 1977 learning that all these buildings were built on leased land. Businesses and corporations had built these huge glittering towers, but the land under it was owned by the Chinese. Back in 1898, the British colonials had negotiated what they thought would be a really good deal. They'd lease Hong Kong for ninety-nine years. Hey, you could do a lot in ninety-nine years.

Can you imagine what it might be like if we woke up one morning to learn that all the buildings on Manhattan would be owned by a foreign country on a certain date?

I was quite excited by this back in 1977. At this time, among other people, I met with some British officials. "Doesn't it bother you that all of this will have to be given back to the Chinese in 1997?" I asked. 1997 was twenty years away. Many of the people I talked to back then did the calculations and knew they would be old and retired on a pension in 1997.

"We'd like to take you to this great floating restaurant in Kowloon," they told me.

Well, it was about 1991 I think that everybody in Hong Kong woke up. Entire Hong Kong families transferred their savings to Switzerland. The stock market in Hong Kong went through the roof. And the British and the Chinese began negotiating and posturing and making demands upon one another and as I write this today they still have not worked anything out.

When I was a kid, I often wondered if I would live to see the year 2000. My year of birth is 1939. If you figure the normal three score and ten then I would expire at age seventy in the year 2009. But what if I died earlier? I sometimes imagined – and I was ten years old when I imagined this – that I would die before I was thirty or that I would die old but kind of a young old. With just my luck I would die in the year 1999 at the age of sixty. I would never know 2000.

What seemed interesting to me about the year 2000 when I was a kid was that everything in the year 2000 would be like a Flash Gordon movie. There would be ray guns and transporters and interplanetary space travel and people would get

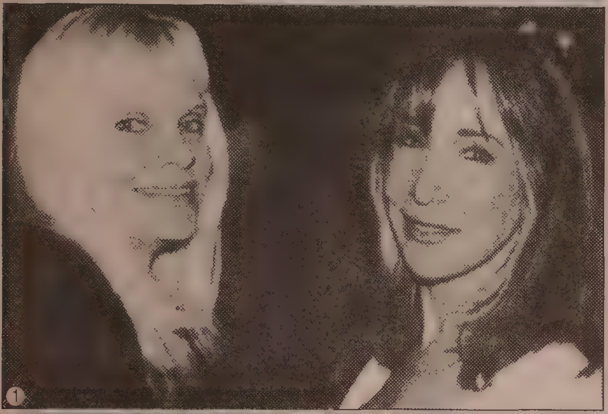
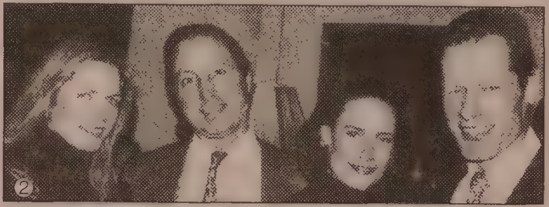
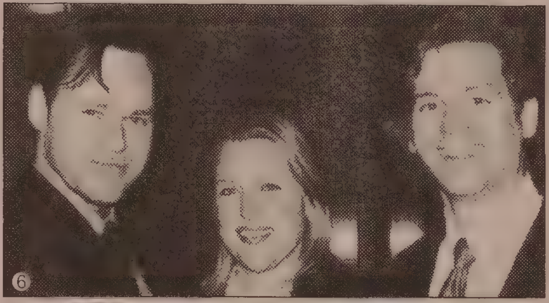
Patricia's Party

In past years, Patricia Burnham would give a Hamptons party early in the season as one of the summer starters. This year it was in January, at the famed "Sorry, there are no reservations for the next two months" restaurant, Daniel, in New York. The sultry Patricia is arguably the "condo queen" selling the well heeled some of the pricier apartments in New York. At her parties, I always see one or more famous divorce attorneys and it took me a few beats to figure out the connection: a woman gets a divorce she sells her condo – and she'll need a new condo – the husband moves out and he needs a condo, it's a chain reaction. But at this party, there were several famous chefs – I haven't figured the business connection yet.







1. Eva Watkins with the party hostess Patricia Burnham 2. Kara and Stephen Benson with Elizabeth Fekkai and Karl Krieger 3. Anthony Haden-Guest and Debra Scott 4. John Watts and the "Sally" show's Lee Fryd 5. Robert Hanke 6. Earl Crittenden, Marjorie Gubelmann, and Trevor Traina 7. Win Foreman III and Susan Madonia 8. Mallory and Roy Kain 9. Michael Romano (Union Square Café) and Edward Vilga

The case was settled just last week by Town Justice Roger Walker, a month and half before this year's parade – an appropriate occasion. Merrin Kerrins would not serve jail time but would pay a $300 fine.

Before the settlement, a variety of legal papers were filed back and forth. Richard Cunningham, who defended Ms. Kerrins, wrote that the charges should be dismissed because the indecent exposure statute did not apply to "any person entertaining of performing in a play, exhibition, show...."

Suffolk Assistant D.A. Nancy Clifford argued that the state's indecent exposure law was designed to "protect parents and children who use public spaces from discomfort caused by unwelcome nudity..."

Judge Walker at one point in some legal papers chimed in with a defense of the indecent exposure law saying that "it was intended to bar indecent or lewd exposure or acts directed towards unsuspecting, unwilling, nonconsenting" viewers.

Will Merrin Kerrins return? We will have to wait until Sunday, March 19, when the parade kicks off at 1 p.m.

Another question mark is perennial winner Henry Uihelin, who enters some years, but, to give others a chance, not others. Uihelin, who runs a fishing boat rental operation out of Montauk Harbor, does not enter a float, but what might be more accurately termed an extravaganza that runs for a half block or more. As many as 30 people participate with him, dressed in full costume, which much of the town spends several months designing. I recall one year that Uihelin put together an almost complete version of Cinderella. Uihelin, like Alfred Hitchcock, is often seen playing some sort of supporting role in his extravaganzas, but that year I will never forget seeing him sitting forty feet up in some amazing contraption dressed in drag as the fairy godmother.

There is no fee to come watch the parade. The stores are open so you can get out of the wind from time to time, and there are usually hot dogs and coffee for sale or you can buy a ticket entitling you to clam chowder, the proceeds benefiting the Montauk Chamber of Commerce. It is served in front of the chamber building by the owners and staff of maybe a dozen of Montauk's finest restaurants.

See you there.

were remarkably well behaved. Upstairs we had one couple over to celebrate with us and we watched the fireworks over the Eiffel Tower, the fireworks at the Washington Monument, the dropping of the ball at Times Square, the big display at the arch in St. Louis, the fireworks in Chicago and so forth and so on.

In the morning, on sofas in the rec room, the study and elsewhere around the house, we found the snoring bodies of the friends of our children and we made them breakfast. It was then I realized that after twelve years of planning, I failed to remember to fire the cannon. I blew it.

It was, perhaps, the most important moment in the life of Daniel S. Rattiner, and I had just plain forgot. Aren't there supposed to be time machines in the year 2000? I've got to go back and do New Year's again.

WHEN IN NEW YORK

The Year Of The Dragon

The Chinese are celebrating the lunar New Year 4698, the Year of the Dragon. It begins on Februarty 5. Each year is represented by an animal, with each animal depicting different traits and qualities. According to Chinese beliefs, the personality of an individual born within any given year is determined by his/her symbol in the Zodiac. Not only does the year of one's birth determine one's personality, it also determines the degree of success and happiness achieved during one's lifetime. People born in the years 1916,1928,1940,1952,1964,1976,1988 are born under the sign of the Dragon. Dragons are strong, noble, honest, brave, sincere and full of energy. They achieve great success; however, it comes later in life.

To celebrate this auspicious year, numerous events are being scheduled in and around Chinatown which boasts the largest Chinese community in the United States.

Adventure on a Shoestring is scheduling two walking tours led by its president, Howard Goldberg. He will describe the area's colorful history and explain the New Year food customs and traditions. Each tour will include stops at a Chinese bakery, herbal shop, large food emporium, Buddhist temple, and other landmarks and will end with a complete luncheon (optional) at a neighborhood restaurant. Learn about the culture and the neighborhood with this indepth exploration of Chinatown at 11:15 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, February 6. For reservations and/or information, call 212-265-2663.

Dr. Phil's New York Talks and Walks will provide a child-friendly Ramble of Chinatown at noon on February 5. Children will explore a Buddhist temple, a Chinese grocery store and other hidden treasures of Chinatown. At 2 p.m., adults will have a more detailed tour of the area's hidden treasures. See where Al Jolson and Irving Berlin were singing waiters and discover the 18th century merchant's mansion and its connection to George Washington. For reservations/information, call 718-591-4741.

The Chinese New Year is spent in celebration with feasts, lion dances and many other festivities. In honor of this holiday, The Chinese Institute in America is hosting this series of public events:

Dumpling Workshop – Participants learn to wrap the dumplings (jiaozi) and eat the results on Saturday, February 5 from 1:30-3 p.m.

Chinese New Year Banquet – Their annual Chinese New Year's Banquet will feature a ten course dinner and live entertainment. Proceeds benefit the Institute's programs.

Couplet Writing Workshop – Adults and children will write their own New Year couplets (to bring luck and prosperity) in Chinese calligraphy on Saturday, February 12 from 1:30-2:30 p.m.

For information and registration, please call 212-744-8181 or go to their website www.chinainstitute.org.

The dragon is depicted more frequently than any other animal in Chinese history. The National Taiwan Craft Research Institute has brought together more than seventy contemporary craft artisians to explore the dragon's past and present role in Chinese culture. The exhibit takes place from February 4 - March 24.

The Taipei Theatre will present a new interpretation, Between Fish and Water, by the Spring Wind Art Theatre on February 18 and 19 at 7:30 p.m. and February 20 at 2 p.m. Both the exposition and the play will be held are at the Chinese Culture Center located in the McGraw Hill Building, 1221 Avenue of the Americas. Call 212-373-1836 for information/reservations.

The Asia Society will be presenting Spiritual Perfection: Religious Sculpture of South and Southeast Asia at the Asia Society at Midtown, February 3-April 1. The Asia Society is located on Park Avenue at 59 Street and is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Free admission is offered every Monday through Friday from noon to 2 p.m with a free gallery talk beginning at 12:30 p.m.

Or you might just want a taste of the Chinese New Year. Visit Canton at 45 Division Street (212-226-4441), Joe's Shanghai at 9 Pell Street (212-233-8888), Wong Kee at 113 Mott Street (212-966-1160), Grand Sichuan at 125 Canal Street (212-625-9212) in Chinatown or try these midtown locations: Shun Lee Palace at 155 East 55 Street (212-371-8844), Tse Yang at 34 East 51 Street (212-688-5447), China Grill at the CBS Building, 52 West 53 Street (212-333-7788), or Chin Chin at 216 East 49 Street (212-888-4555).

Happy (kwai le) New (sbin) Year (nian)! We, born under the sign of the Dragon, wish you fu (luck), lu (prosperity), shou (longevity) and shi (happiness).

Next Week – Valentine's Day in the Big Apple.

TRIVIA QUESTION:

What is the name of the square in the center of Chinatown? What streets intersect with it?

Answer to last week's trivia question: New York's first school (The Collegiate School) is located at the corner of 77 Street and West End Avenue. It was established in 1638 and is still in existence.

The New York Times, August, 1998

In Tasting, L.I. Wines Hold Own vs. French
By Richard J. Scholem

"Either prestigious French wines are wildly overpriced, Long Island wines are the buy of the ages or both. At least those were the conclusions that resulted from a recent blind tasting of Lenz Long Island wines and high-flying French headliners like La Grande Dame 1988 and '89, Chateau Pétrus 1992, '93 and '94, J. Drouhin, Montrachet Marquis de Laguiche 1994, '95 and '96, and Veuve Clicquot Gold 1989."

"And how do Lenz wines that cost from $10 to $30 stack up in head-to-head competition with French superstars? They equal or surpass them."

Escape To Bermuda

To say the island of Bermuda is beautiful is an understatement. The water is an amazing blend of blue and green. The people are pleasant and friendly. And even though it is the middle of winter, we still enjoyed our long weekend.

You might be wondering why anyone would want to go to Bermuda in January. The island is 650 miles off the coast of North Carolina so the temperature there is in the low 60s between November and March. Not exactly the warm and balmy locale you'd be seeking to escape from New York this time of year.

But actually, it's perfect weather for the Bermuda International Marathon. Held annually, this event draws hundreds of participants. And if they're lucky, like me, they are accompanied by their family and neighbors. We were part of the Long Island Team in Training and we represented the Leukemia Society of America. This is a wonderful concept. By joining this team, a person decides which marathon they want to participate in. Each destination has a certain fundraising commitment attached to it. Marathons are scheduled throughout the year and new team members are always welcome. If you are interested in making a donation or joining the Long Island Chapter, you may call (516)752-8500 for more information.

Michelle, Bob and I were part of the half marathon, walking team. We had a wonderful experience as we made our way through the 13.1 mile course. It's a great way to see the landscape and the people of Bermuda who lined the path. They offered words of encouragement as well as snacks and water. We saw farms and animals, churches and homes in all different pastel colors. We walked along the beautiful waters surrounding the island. The terrain was a bit challenging as we pushed up and down hills in patches of wind and a light rain. And just at the right moment, a beautiful rainbow appeared. I can't think of a better way to have seen the lovely, beautiful place that is Bermuda.

Judi and Cyril

We learned a few interesting things. There is a time difference of one hour, it being later in Bermuda. The legal tender is the Bermuda dollar which is on an equal basis with the U.S. dollar.

Also, you cannot rent a car. That leaves buses and taxis which can get expensive. We stayed in Hamilton so we were able to walk to a lot of shopping and restaurants. Bikes and motorized bicycles called putt-putts are available to rent but not too tempting in the winter weather.

The other highlight of this trip was our excursion to Dolphin Quest. We had a great time swimming and playing with the dolphins despite the rain and 68 degree water temperature. I rarely go in water less than 80 degrees but these mammals were worth it! Even more rare would be my enthusiasm to spend $300 ($75 per person) for a half hour of family fun, but again, worth every penny. Reservations are recommended and we actually spent a lot more than a half hour there. While it was unpleasant to be in the cold water in the rain, the benefit was that we were the only four people in the lagoon with three dolphins and two excellent trainers. Dolphin Quest is temporarily located at the Bermuda Maritime Museum. During their peak season, they can be found at the Southampton Princess Hotel. Reservations can be made by calling (441)239-6957. Participants have the opportunity to touch, play and learn about dolphins up close and personal. Wetsuits are provided as well as clear instructions and explanations. When I return to Bermuda, I will make sure to do this again!

Shop'til You Drop With Maria Tennariello

Starting out this week in Southampton, I stopped off at a very nice shop on Jobs Lane, Clothes – Minded for a look at what was going on. Well, they are running a huge spectacular sale. Everything in the store is either $30-$40 dollars off or 50 to 80 percent off all seasons, spring/summer clothing, and great for anyone vacationing in warm weather. Clothes – Minded is clearing out all its stock to make may for the new merchandise. All blazers, coats, sweaters and pants are marked way, way down. Store sale is every Friday and Saturday in February from 12-5 or by appointment. Call for information 287-1078.

Nearby at a favorite of mine, DMC Accessories Outlet is having a winter wonderland sale going on right now. They are taking 20 percent to 60 percent off storewide on their already low prices. No would be the perfect time for you and yours to stock up and save on all of your hair care needs. I love the hair chachka's and accessories at DMC and found great discounts like twenty to 60 percent off from handbags, clips and claws, microfiber bags, winter hats, gloves and scarves and winter scruncies that are now six for only nine dollars.

At Dansk on Main Street they are doing their mystery discount savings again! Extra savings from now through March 6 you can save an extra 15 to 50 percent off your entire purchase. Now is the time to stock up on all your favorite dinnerware, silverware, pots, stemware and accessories.

Are you looking for a local home decorating service? I found one and have recommended Debbie's home decorator to many of my friends, and readers. She is very organized and does custom re-upholstery, slipcovers, drapes, country pillows, cozy bench pillows, cushions, fringed, tasseled, damask, silks and cottons, and decorates in a variety of styles such as country, contemporary and elegant with many fabrics to choose from. Consider Debbie's as one stop shop with great personal service and "I really care" attitude. Call Debbie at 725-4544 for information.

While I was strolling through Sag Harbor I stopped in at D.J. Hart's on Main Street. D.J. is completely renovating her store and is have some nice sales right now, so stop in shop and save on ladies dresses, skirts, hats, gloves, coats and accessories including great. The store will be open until Valentine's Day weekend, then the renovation begins. Can't wait to see the new shop Dee!

A quick ride to East Hampton for some mid-winter buys at Eileen Fisher on Newtown Lane. Manager, Nancy Goell and her assistant Joan have slashed the prices on velvet dresses to $98, silk camisole dresses are nicely priced at $148.80, classic washable wool separates in new colors like taupe, ocean, muslin, citron and white that mix so well with the basic essentials in black. New to the store is brushed cotton knits that you will want to live in year 'round. Thinking Valentine? Check out the silk nightgowns, sooo sexy! I love the silk, velvet Merino wool separates, wool suiting and Mohair sweaters and scarves, and…the are drastically reduced. I will keep you posted for those early spring arrivals. Some are already there. Do stop by or call Eileen Fisher at 324-4111.

How bout that sweetie of your? At Hren's Country Florist on Montauk Highway in East Hampton you can order one dozen beautiful roses that are arranged in a vase with free chocolates for only $49.95. Now that's a buy! For local and Teleflora delivery you can call 324-0640.

At the Top Drawer Lingerie at the Circle in East Hampton you will find a large selection, over 10,000, yes, 10,000 bras and panties in stock from sizes petite to extra large and specialty items like maternity and nursing bras, body care products and mastectomy products. If you buy two or more bras or panties of any one brand Top Drawer Lingerie will be happy to take 20% off each piece. Open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

On my way back to Sag Harbor I stopped off at World Pie on Main Street in Bridghampton for the incredible winter special take-out for only $19.95 you can take home a large classic pie with Caesar salad for two. Who needs to cook? Not me!

February is here and I know everyone in waiting for the Dan's Papers annual Have-A-Heart Valentine Ball that takes place on February 12 at Atlantica on Dune Road in Westhampton Beach. Themed, "Some Enchanted Evening," at $100, tickets are going fast. Call Linda Shapiro-329-5480 for ticket information.

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Valentine's Day shopping!

E-mail Maria at shoptil@hamptons.com, if there's a sale, she wants to know about it.

from one place to another either by a rocket pack they would strap to their back or by disassembling their molecules in one place and reassembling them in another. That's what the year 2000 looked like back then. You could look it up.

What a disappointment it would be, indeed, not to see the year 2000. For a long time, I wondered how they might pronounce it. We had eighteen hundred and nineteen hundred. There seemed an outside chance it would be twenty hundred.

And then I realized that what I really wanted to live to see was the year 2013. I'll explain. The year 2000 seemed about ninety-nine percent sure would be pronounced "two thousand." There was, after all, the precedent from the year "one thousand." The pronunciation of the year 2001 seemed pretty much sewed up for me about twenty-five years ago when they came out with a movie by that name. It was pronounced "two thousand and one." And that seemed to solve the problem all the way up to "two thousand and nine" and up to "two thousand and twelve" if you think about it.

But how do you pronounce 2013? Notice I have not written it out. It could be "two thousand thirteen" or it could be "twenty thirteen" which seems to roll off the tongue better. And what happens to Twentieth Century Fox? Twenty-First Century Fox? These were things that sometimes occupied my mind as I carried my books home from school way back then.

I just read that there was a big meeting in California to start planning for a turn of the century book which is to be called the Millennium Whole Earth Catalogue. About five hundred people, most of them left over hippies from the sixties, attended this meeting. They are going to do a remake of the Whole Earth Catalogue which came out in 1968 and sold two million copies. We'll be hearing a lot more about the millennium.

And what about 2013? I'll just have to wait and see. I'll be seventy-four.

I can do that.

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

ART BEYOND THE HAMPTONS: PART III, MEXICO CITY

Art is all pervasive in Mexico, as "Art Commentary's" description of the Yucatan proved last week. Art, which is an integral part of the environment, exists in Mexico City, too, forming a symbiotic relationship with both nature and its residents. Consider the Capital's teeming street life, which is not unlike New York City's: lots of outdoor fairs offering food, produce and, unlike the ones in Manhattan, real necessities. Thus, the fairs' diverse colors, shapes, and movement make for a funky kind of installation art.

Street performers present another art form where aesthetics involve multiple senses: visual, aural, kinetics, haptics (touch) and often smell. A Chilean musician, who played both the drum and an instrument with several flutes attached to each another, provided an arresting, imaginative journey into the mythic unknown, where all our sensibilities were engaged simultaneously.

Architecture was another art form that engaged this critic as well, particularly the new Four Seasons Hotel on the celebrated Paseo De La Reforma— a tasteful mixture of Colonial style with Post modern touches, complete with a colorful center courtyard. Not too far away, the Casa Gonzalez presented a different style: a converted mansion, circa 1920s, which is now a Bed and Breakfast. Possessing an engineering degree, Jorge Moore is the family's fourth generation to run the place, and a most congenial host, furnishing an oasis in the midst of the world's largest city.

Naturally, there are abundant museums/galleries in Mexico City, venues for more conventional kinds of art. One favorite is the Tamayo Museum, named after the influential artist, who along with Rivera, Siqueiros and Orozco, established contemporary Mexican aesthetics/ styles. That defining syle, borrowed from European traditions like Cubism, Surrealism and Futurism, still determines most art this critic saw. Fantastic Realism (or Magic Realism) is an especially intriguing form that has evolved as well, a contradiction in terms but no less potent (and seen in the classic Bunuel film, Los Olvidados, and in the contemporary Yugoslavian movie, Time of the Gypsies).

Some works by Tamayo in the current exhibition mirrored Abstract Expressionism, but most moving were his figurative pieces like "La Rubia Del Antifaz," which combine a number of styles and resemble paintings by East Hampton artist, Ronald Stein.

Another show in the museum was by Max Jimenez, a most impressive artist who featured figures with large body parts, circa the 1930s and 1940s — part Picasso, part Surrealism, part a political statement, especially related to his Negro subjects. Space was also an important thematic element, calling attention to literal edges of the picture plane and to taking risks, "approaching the edge."

Across the street from the Tamayo Museum, the mesmerizing sculptural garden was one more example of Mexican art— exisiting in a people's park, the past and the present (represented by excellent abstract and conceptual sculpture) locked in perfect harmony. Harmony – hard to find these days, but all the more appreciated.

Honoring the Artist: Annika Berglof

Most people try to avoid the unpredictable aspects of modern life at all costs. Give them security and stability. Not Swedish artist Annika Berglof who asserts that "Predictability— seeing life from one perspective-- is not for me."

Now back from Sweden where she has spent the last two years, Ms. Berglof seems glad to be living once again in New York, oblivious to the present snow and cold that are part and parcel of her native city, Stockholm.

"I've lived in New York for a total of ten years," Ms. Berglof says. "Although I loved Stockholm, I was getting bored because I knew what was around every corner; I could see what was coming. Socialism didn't encourage creativity either. When I get comfortable, I know it's time to move on."

Ms. Berglof also knew it was time to move on after she majored in cinema but realized she wasn't very "technical." So she switched to painting, first attending Manhattan's School of Visual Arts and then the New York Studio School which she found more "serious and fabulous, just the kind of small institution that I liked."

It's been three years since Ms. Berglof has graduated and hence three years since she's been painting on her own. But it hasn't been easy. "It took me a year before I painted what was me, " she explains. "I didn't know how to proceed after school. But things got better. I changed from oil to acrylics and got a wonderful model who had a positive influence on my work. I take a lot from my models. I work with them; they aren't just subjects." (The cover painting features Ms. Berglof's current model, a German dancer, who represents all three figures.)

Ms. Berglof soon unlocked other ways that have led to her success. "I discovered what ingredients are important to me," she notes. "Colors, rhythm, shape. How every ingredient effects another one. I don't know where I'm going with a painting. I just know I have these things that I use to get order out of confusion. I look for order, harmony and tension. I keep cutting, cutting, getting down to the essence. My paintings tell a story— how colors meet each other. Stories don't have to be about subject matter."

Ms. Berglof's love of story telling which lays bear the essentials of truth effects her taste in movies as well; a favorite film is De Sica's The Bicycle Thief, where even the smallest detail is important.

Working several months on her large canvases, Ms. Berglof starts from scratch, never consciously thinking about her previous pieces. "They are a little similar, of course," she remarks, "because they come from my soul. But each painting takes me where it wants to go. Painting is a great adventure. And never predictable."

–Marion Wolberg Weiss

Ms. Berglof's paintings are available for viewing at Southampton's RVS Gallery.

Dan's Papers Eighth Annual Have-A-Heart Valentine Ball

February 2000 will mark eight years since Dan's Papers sponsored the first Have-A-Heart Valentine Ball and two very special people from Southampton, Rose and John Dios, decided to create a way to give back to the needy in our East End communities, during the Valentine season, when gifts in the mainstream portion of society are in excess.

Humble beginnings were the mode in which the Dios' kicked off their first "Have-A-Heart" Valentine Ball, with a Black Tie Spagetti Dinner at the Bridgehampton Community House, in February, 1993. This tradition followed the next year with a Champagne and Dessert reception at the former Sfuzzi's (now the Southampton Publick House). Each year approximately ninety people attended, a crowd comprised of the Dios' close friends and clients.

In 1995 the event was opened to the public and over three hundred people poured into the OMNI which was kindly donated by Brent Lynch. Over fifteen local restaurants participated in what now has been dubbed "A Taste of Winter." The following year the theme was "Red Hot" Valentine Ball, back to its roots at the Bridgehampton Community House. 1997 featured the

Magnolia

How sweet it is! Or could be for the big splashy flowering of a young film maker, and for the passionate, overheated, hot from his first big hit, film maker… his deflowering… by self-inflicted blows bludgeoning his fresh, petal-opening creativity.

For the blossoming talented chancy, writer/director of Magnolia… too TOO MUCH is just right. The bigger, the longer, the showier, the more shocking..the better. In his first big film Boogie Nights, two years ago, he gave us a peep-hole peek at the "family" feelings and sentimental relationships of 1970s porno movie makers. While laying bare the tawdry and emotional shattering of a once-innocent male porn star who flew high but soon, in a career and personal nose dive, reveals his ultimate penalty...impotence...and does it by displaying it in a curtain closing final scene that brought a gasp or two from a few old maids. Now in Magnolia the ambitiously excessive Paul Thomas Anderson, goes to great lengths, again, to get our attention. He unravels a continual barrage of the insolent "F" word and other rude four-letter words of the most abusive sort, tripping off the lips of almost the entire excellent cast...tripping up his otherwise well-meaning script, careening it headlong into a stumbling, bumbling, head-over heels, in-love-with his audacity, crashing mess. This plus a mosaic of a lot of people's troubled lives, takes three hours..three long hours. I think that if he had eliminated two thirds of the foul-mouthed folderols, he'd have had a two hour, or so, tauter and stronger film, rather than have that tiresome third hour that makes you aware of the great lengths the characters go to… whining about how terrible their family life was, because of how terrible they were. None of them are in the porn movie busines… but two of them produce television game shows.obviously, more obscene… and muddled into a gamut of many other off-color disparate characters and stories that will eventually come together in the end… if it ever comes!

BLOOMING MANHOOD

If there is a lead role in Magnolia it is the cock-sure guru/cult leader… a bellowing young, exalter of masculine sexual dominance over the opposite sex. He is a loud trashy, strutting, theatrically passionate evangelist, selling his message of male physical power (of what is, essentially, rape) on television. In the role of the preening, rock star-like, extoller of man's macho-might is the mighty mite, himself, Tom Cruise… making a complete turnabout from his scaredy cat, vapid role in Kubrick's Eyes Wide Shut… Mr. Anderson pads Mr. Cruise's Jockey briefs and his role with enough machismo to shock the pants off of those dear old, old maids. However, you women will be pleased to know that Cruise's potent Potentate eventually has a complete meltdown when he confronts his cancer-ridden, bed-ridden father, a TV production tycoon… near his father's end and the movie's end. Jason Robards, as the withered mogul, gasps and kvetches interminably… until you want his terminal illness to terminate… faster. Alas, he goes on and on, like the movie itself, that self destructs two thirds of the way through, because of Anderson's odd bids for immortality that sinks his credibility.

That great Philip Seymour Hoffman is a tender and compassionate nurse to the dying man, the old kvetch devotes much of his vocal trashing to calling his caretaker a choice selection of the profanities rampant in this film. Mr. Hoffman, on the other hand, conveys so much without words. I felt that all the other marvelous actors would have made a meaningful movie, if they were allowed to keep their traps shut.

Julianne Moore gives another stunning performance however, those words again. A blizzard use of the raw, crudites that blur an already flaky script. Does the film have to stick to theme? Could Anderson's dialogue writing be somewhat limited? Ms. Moore is the dying man's second wife. He had deserted his first wife and young son (the one now selling MANHOOD) and while the long-time-dying man is sobbing about being unfaithful to his young wife… she's sobbing to a lawyer about all the men she's given pleasure to. Yes, I guess there is a theme here.

COINCIDENCE'S SHORT ARM

How about all the other characters and their stories? How do they mesh? Well, not as ingeniously as in Tarrentino's Pulp Fiction or a few other films. Here some just bump into each other. There's the other TV producer, played by Phillip Baker Hall, the homely man with a face like a squished frog. He hosts a game show that pits the wits of kids against adults. The popular, long-time host is seen being unfaithful to his wife, when not on camera, and also trying to connect with his runaway, cocaine sniffing daughter, Melora Walters, who inhales another blizzard of that white stuff and the off-color stuff. The Quiz Show host is also dying of cancer. The problems with his daughter are as incurable as the cancer. His wife is not thrilled with the problems either. There are a couple of nice people in the mix… like the smart little Quiz kid, done with the distant sorrowfulness of the Sixth Sense boy by Jeremy Blackman. Once more, the director produces warm emotionality when he isn't writing so much and cramming it down the actors throats. Not a nice person is the boy's greedy rotten father. This causes the bright boy, a dinning memory and dark moments.

On the good side list, John C. Riley as a too sensitive policeman and also a good person, but definitely mixed -up goofy is William H. Macy who had been a brilliant money-making Quiz kid but now is a dolt in debt..he simply wants the man he loves from a distance to love him.

These are most of the unhappy people populating Magnolia, which is actually a section of California's San Fernando Valley. Some publicity person probably came up with the flowery "petal-opening" poetic notion..that's good too. P.T. Anderson has put together this Robert Altman-like "short-cuts," with a great deal of verve and a totally over-board, down pour of ugliness as unpoetic as squished frogs. His craftily constructed panoply of tough steely sections that encase his idealistic cursing the darkness that blankets some contemporary families, unfortunately caves in under the weight of his very heavy-handedego, just as his "Biblical Scourge" crumples and collapses the autos on the Magnolia streets.

Guy Jean de Fraumeni is the producer, writer, and director of award-winning films for ABC, NBC, PBS and European feature films. He is assisted in this column by Sarah Halsey who hosts with him the Dan's Paper's Film Festival.

Have-a-Heart

"Fire and Ice" Ball at which Castle and Pierpont Manhattan event designers, transformed the Harbor Cove Café into an absolute wonderland. Sapore di Mare opened its doors in 1998 for "That's Amore!" and over four hundred guests were treated to "A Taste of Winter" prepared by over twenty four local restaurents anc caterers.

On February 6, 1999, Dan's Papers "Have-A-Heart" expanded its horizons and headed west to Atlantica Restaurant at the Westhampton Bath and Tennis Club on Dune Road. Todd Jacobs, proprietor of Atlantica, as well as Tierra Mar, dedicated his magnificent and elegant space to the 8th "Have-A-Heart Annual Ball, dubbed "Moonstruck." Phoebe Snow, donated her time for a special performance and again, as in the past, the event featured "A Taste of Winter", showcasing our area's finest chefs. Dancing to the sounds of CAM Entertainment and a select Silent Auction was featured. The first Have-A-heart Ball of the new millennium will be held, again at Atlantica with the theme "Some Enchanted Evening". As always it will be the party of the winter!

The first two years, guests received entry by bringing a bag of groceries, which in turn would be donated to the local food pantries. Over the following years, Have-A-Heart has evolved into the only Community Trust on the East End of Long Island. Proceeds from the Have-A-Heart 1999 event supported programs designed to fill basic needs on the East End. Currently, the programs provide the following:

* Funds for local food pantries and food distribution projects
* New back-to-school clothing and supplies for local children
* Car seats, new clothing and infant supplies to need families with newborn babies
* Running shoes and T-shirts for a sports mentored track team
* Winter coats, mittens and boots for local day care centers
* Waterproof winter boots for migrant farm workers

Come and enjoy an enchanted evening complete with food, spirits, music and entertainment all under one big beautiful roof, Atlantica.

Tickets are $100 per person. For information call, LBS Productions 329-5480.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

Hot, steamy soups and long simmering stews often take over our daily fare on chilly wintry days. Yet winter offers a whole seasons worth of pungent greens and vegetables for light and healthy winter salad pleasures.

Fennel, for instance, available from fall through spring, peaks in mid-winter. In Elizabeth Schneider's Uncommon Fruits and Vegetables, Harper and Row, she suggests that the feathery topped light green vegetable is often likened to licorice or anise in supermarkets which is a shame as it is lighter and less persistent than either flavor. When fennel is cooked it becomes even more delicate with a hint of sweetness. Sliced raw fennel makes a delicious appetizer, dipped into a fine extra-virgin olive oil and dabbed with a bit of coarse salt. The body and texture of fennel enlivens a luscious salad of apples and endive with intensely flavored Roquefort dressing.

Marinated beets add a colorful note to endive and watercress, two fine cold-weather choices, for another timely salad. My favorite way to cook beets is to roast rather than boil them. You will find this method intensifies their flavor. Roast them in their skins up to a week ahead until they are tender when pierced with a fork. They are easy to peel when cooled and can be refrigerated until you are ready to peel and use them.

Remember to use impeccably fresh ingredients and high quality condiments to enhance the flavor of your winter salads.

FENNEL, APPLE AND ENDIVE SALAD WITH TOASTED WALNUTS

The aromatic crispness of fennel combine deliciously with apple slices and endive.

Serves 6-8

1/2 cup walnut halves
2 medium or 1 large fresh fennel
2 Granny Smith apples
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 large head endive

Dressing

4 ounces Roquefort or blue cheese
2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
Freshly ground pepper to taste
1/2 cup plain low-fat yogurt
1/4 cup fresh cold water
1/2 cup extra-virgin olive oil

1. Toast walnut halves in preheated 375 degree oven for 6-7 minutes until lightly browned and crisp. Set aside

2. Peel, core and halve apples then slice into thin wedges. Put into a bowl and toss carefully with lemon juice. Cut fennel lengthwise into thin slices, remove the core and separate slices into sticks. Soak in a bowl of ice water to cover then drain and pat dry. Toss gently with apples and set aside. Separate endive spears, wash and spin-dry then wrap in paper towels to absorb excess moisture. Set aside.

3. Prepare dressing: Crumble cheese into a blender or work bowl of food processor fitted with steel knife. Add all remaining ingredients except oil. Blend or process to mix, scraping down sides as necessary. Gradually pour oil through opening in blender cover or through feed tube of processor and blend to mix thoroughly. Taste to adjust seasoning if necessary. Scrape mixture into a bowl or small pitcher.

4. Salad assembly: Fan 4 or 5 endive spears on a salad plate. Divide apple/fennel mixture equally in a mound at the core end of the spears. Drizzle over dressing and sprinkle on toasted walnuts.

ENDIVE, WATERCRESS AND BEET SALAD

Roasting rather than boiling beets will intensify their flavor. Can be prepared ahead, refrigerated and peeled when ready to use.

Serves 6-8

1 bunch beets, trimmed and scrubbed
1 tablespoon sugar
1/4 cup white wine vinegar
2 Belgian endives, leaves separated
1 bunch watercress, heavy stems removed
1 hard-cooked egg, sieved

Vinaigrette

2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
2 shallots, finely chopped
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
1 teaspoon water
3 tablespoons tarragon vinegar
6 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil

1. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Securely wrap beets in a large square of heavy foil and place on a baking sheet. Bake for 1 1/2 hours until tender when pierced with a fork. When cool enough to handle peel the beets, the skin will comes off easily. Slice beets then stack and cut into julienne. Season with sugar and wine vinegar and set aside.

2. Wash endive leaves and watercress, separately in a salad spinner; spin-dry and wrap in paper towels to absorb excess moisture. Can be prepared ahead and refrigerated for several hours.

3. Prepare vinaigrette: Put garlic and shallots in a mixing bowl. Add salt, pepper, mustard, water and vinegar and stir to mix. Add oil gradually in a thin stream until thoroughly blended. Taste to adjust seasoning if necessary.

4. To serve: In a large shallow bowl or platter arrange endive leaves in a circle with their points up. Drain beets from their marinade and toss with half the prepared dressing. Spoon beets into center of serving bowl or platter forming a mound. Place a ring of watercress at the base of the endive leaves circling the beets. Can be prepared ahead to this point and refrigerated up to several hours, covered with plastic wrap. Bring to room temperature for serving. Top with sieved hard-cooked eggs. Serve remaining vinaigrette in a sauceboat or small pitcher.

5 WAYS TO CHARGE!

Dining LOG

CHEQUIT INN — The Ram's Head Inn's proprietors, the Eklunds, have polished the character of their downtown Shelter Island Victorian relic to a bright lustre. The street level restaurant with an outdoor patio overlooking the lovely seascape is open daily for lunch and dinner. Dining, accomodations, weddings and conferences year round, 749-0018.

COAST GRILL — Serving consistently high quality generous selections. The freshest seafood, vegetables, meat and pasta are prepared in varying styles from the traditional to the wonderfully creative. There's pepper-crusted tuna, pan seared ostrich, bouillabaise, oven roasted swordfish and NY cut steak au poivre, to name a few. Dinner 5 p.m., seven days from June 15 - Sept 15. Open weekends off-season. Prix fixe and two-for-one entrees on selected dates. Early dinner specials Mon - Thurs 5 - 6:30 p.m. Call 283-2277.

GURNEY'S INN RESORT AND SPA

SEA GRILLE – Overlooking the Atlantic Ocean, the Sea Grille serves dinner every day. An award winning chef prepares an exciting menu of international eclectic appetizers and entrees. Menu items feature: cumin scented seabass, tequila cured salmon and rack of lamb with a mace infused demi-glace. Dinner is served from 6 to 10 p.m. and there is a three course prix fixe for $21.95 at 5:30 p.m.

CAFFE MONTE — Serving breakfast daily from 7:30 to 10 a.m. From 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. the cafe serves a casual, economically priced Italian-style menu. La Paticceria serves light fare from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m.

JOHN DUCK JR. — "The home of good food." The oldest restaurant in the Hamptons. Founded in 1900. Steaks, chops, fresh local seafood, German specialities and of course, LI duckling. Open for lunch and dinner Tue - Sun. Complete lunch and dinner specials. Located at North Main and Prospect in Southampton, 283-0311.

MIRKO'S — A great little restaurant tucked away at the back of Water Mill's only shopping plaza. Serving the best classic and contemporary cuisine. Three stars in the New York Times review, "Exceptional fare, exceptional service." 1998 Zagat Survey "Top notch, a hidden gem." Reservations at 726-4444.

OLD STOVE PUB — Greek American restaurant serving Greek specialties, enormous steaks and chops. Located in Wainscott next to Poxabogue Golf. Plan your party in their spacious field adjacent to the restaurant. Open year-round, call for reservations, 537-3300.

PALOMAS — Water Mill Shoppes' new updated Mexican restaurant serves classic Mexican cuisine with a sophisticated touch. Entrees starting at $14 featuring daily specials. Prepared fresh daily by their chef, a native of Mexico City. A must try are their famous oversized Margaritas and pitchers of Sangria. Open Thursdays – Sunday, reservations recommended. – 726-7007.

RAM'S HEAD INN — Often booked solid for good reason – while it's a beautiful journey to get there, call to reserve so you aren't turned back! Offering some of the finest continental cuisine on the East End. Stunning views of Coecles Harbor, the bay and the sunset. Restaurant and accommodations year-round, Shelter Island Heights. 749-0811.

RIPTIDE — Waterfront dining on the Shinnecock Canal. Menu items include roast LI duck, porterhouse steak, shrimp and lobster rolls, tuna, mahi-mahi, mako, shrimp, scallops, pure backfin crabcakes, surf and turf or the Riptide zuppa de pesce. The Science of Healing Touch

The Healing Touch program teaches how to prepare and manage the practitioner's field to create change in the field of the client. In practice, the healer creates a healing environment (safe, trusting, caring) for the client. There is an intake interview and data sheet is completed. Pain, including that from arthritis, is felt to be a sign or message that there is a problem in the person's energy field. Learning to hear and to understand what the body is telling us, are important aspects of healing. For example, identifying what was going on in the client's life at the time the problems were initially noticed would be appropriate. The healer then does an assessment with his or her hands after first becoming centered (clear in the self) and open (able to receive without judgment).

The hands, used as sensors, are slowly moved about in the air near the body, especially from one to six inches off the skin, to determine the shape and quality of the energy field. One compares right and left sides. Healers will also direct attention to scanning specific vortexes of energy known as the Chakras, to further determine where flow is affected. May healers find the use of pendulums quite helpful in evaluating the strength and direction of energy flow over these Chakras. Attention should also be directed toward scars which may "leak energy" and contribute to problems locally and even elsewhere.

Sensations vary and include temperature (warm, cool), discomfort (painful, prickly, itchy), pressure (empty, dense), and movement (smooth or pulsating). The temperature perceived in the air is different that the actual temperature felt when the hand is placed on the person's skin.

Different healers perceive differently. The healer listens attentively to words coming from the patient and to thoughts coming into his/her own mind, for clues to the problem. In arthritis, the fields over the affected joints may feel cool or hot, empty or full, smooth or pulsating, and one cannot anticipate how the field will feel simply by taking a history. These same scans by hand and pendulum are repeated during and after the treatment to monitor changes.

While energy changes already occur during the initial scanning, the next part of the healing sequence is the specific intervention. There are a multitude of hands-on approaches. Sessions may be strongly directed by intuition. I commonly first establish a connection with the patient by simply placing my hands in the air an inch or two just above and under each foot. This initial calm and non-threatening approach is well accepted by patients, and then I usually continue with other interventions, such as full body techniques including smoothing the field with the "Magnetic Unruffle" and balancing the field and supporting flow with the "Chakra Connection."

In arthritis, the intention of the healer is to reduce pain and swelling, to retard the degenerative process, and to restore the joint to function. The use of "therapeutic modulation" and the "pain drain" may be quite helpful interventions. In modulation, the healer places a hand to either side of the affected part with the intention of normalizing the field, while in the pain drain, one places one hand over the area of pain, and positions the other hand away from the body as if to siphon away the pain or congestion. Pain may be felt by the healer during these interventions.

Another arthritis technique is "Ultrasound" where the healer directs focused energy through the thumb and two fingers held together, moving the hand over the affected joint. There are more elaborate interventions, detailed in reference Healing Touch II Notebook, such as the "Vertebral Spiral Technique," used to relax the muscles holding the vertebrae while using a variation of ultrasound, and the "Hopi Indian Technique," used if specific areas of the spine remain blocked.

Many healers consciously ask for guidance and assistance from higher entities, such as Guides, Archangels, Jesus, God and the Universal Energy Field. In addition, counseling skill expertise is often very important. While some interventions may take a few moments, a full session would usually involve thirty to sixty minutes. At the conclusion of the session, the client should feel fully alert, integrated and relaxed. His or her energy field should feel balanced with a smooth, easy, comfortably warm flow.

Sometimes a person needs to be seen only once for a healing intervention, but usually more sessions are useful, especially for long term chronic problems. The frequency of sessions can be daily, but in practice, they usually occur weekly, and then less often. Clients are advised to not abandon customary medial interventions, and to seek a physician if not already done.

EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

The following has been reported by the farm radio and press several times now, although the exact circumstances and statement have not been confirmed but the scenario goes like this: At a late summer ceremony at the White House, current Vice President Gore let slip what many believe was his true feelings about the status of US agriculture. While presenting a national award to a Colorado FFA (Future Farmers of America) member, Gore asked the student what his future plans were. Upon hearing that the he wanted to go into production agriculture, Gore reportedly replied that the young person should consider other options because, "production agriculture is being shifted out of the US to the third world"! Gore was instrumental in the development of the United Nations "Agenda 2000", which calls for just such an outcome. It is unfortunate that one of our nations most important leaders in public policy has basically written off the American farmer.

Here at home it may not be vocalized by our elected officials, but I believe actions speak louder than words. Politicians love to get in front of an audience and say with false conviction how important agriculture is to our community, our economy, and our quality of life. Then they turn around and introduce legislation that is anti-agriculture, or vote against us on particular bills. Politicians know how to count votes. With less than 17% of the US population engaged in agriculture production, is it any wonder how they vote?

Here on Long Island, we have about 650 agricultural operations left. Many are considering leaving the industry because of the overwhelming impediments to financial stability. It is a national problem not just ours. Due to simple economics – the fact that it is cheaper to produce where land, labor and other input costs are lower – we continue to outsource for food and say goodbye to more farmers. Do we really want to be dependent on other countries for our food as we are now for our oil?

Here on Long Island, our remaining farmers have more than their share of adversity. If our elected officials and citizens truly believe that farming is important to Long Island, then it is time to stand up and be counted on to support our needs and our public policy issues. Political opportunism and grandstanding may get the politicians media attention, but it is disingenuous. It is their votes on issues that will make or break our farmers ability to survive. The people must decide do we truly want working farms or do we just want the vistas of our open spaces?

Joseph M. Gergela III is executive director of Long Island Farm Bureau

POLICE BLOTTER

The theft of two eight-foot benches from the beach between Albert's Landing and Barnes Hole Road in Amagansett was reported by Robert Westfall of Bell Estate. Each bench was valued at over $1,000. No arrests have been made.

The bench bandits may have struck again in Wainscott. Jane Rosenthal reported that a teak bench also valued at over $1,000 was swiped from her porch on South Breeze Road on January 18.

An argument between David Muller of Snake Hollow Road in Bridgehampton and a tenant in his house resulted in Mr. Muller getting his head pushed against a wall by the tenant. The lambasted landlord did not press charges against the errant tenant, but asked police to escort his assailant from the premises.

A Bridgehampton man was working out at the East Hampton Gym on January 10, but instead of losing weight, he lost his wallet. According to police, it was two hours before the man noticed the wallet was missing from his locker. In the interim, the locker room robber bought a Rolex watch for $5,000 at London Jewelers with one of the stolen credit cards.

A forty-one year-old East Hampton man had been going door to door "preaching the word of God." But apparently that wasn't annoying enough. "It was when he started driving his car across everybody's lawn in the middle of the night that the neighbors took umbrage," said a member of the constabulary with a big vocabulary.

When police tried to arrest the alleged lawn driver on January 21, he led them in a vehicular pursuit down Springs-Fireplace Road. Eventually his car became disabled, and after giving police a difficut time, he was charged with resisting arrest and transported to Stony Brook for a psychological evaluation.

Pat Grandfield of Crandall Street in East Hampton reported that somebody gave her a lawn job on January 19. The off-road motorist took down part of her fence in the process. No mention was made of the aformentioned "preacher."

The CVS Drug Store on Pantigo Road in East Hampton was the victim of shoplifting, twice last week. On January 10, a nineteen year-old Springs woman was caught with $30 worth of toiletries, including shampoo, conditioner, acne cream, deodorant and soap. The bathroom product bandit was charged with petit larceny.

On January 11, two Springs women, ages sixteen and seventeen, with the same address, were caught with a bigger bounty, $105.99 worth to be precise. Apparently, they had more than grooming on their minds as among the items filched were hair ties, lipstick, nail polish, make up, a stuffed frog and a pregnancy test.

East Hampton Town Justice Roger Walker sentenced Merrin Kerins, thirty-six, of Holbrook to pay $300 for disorderly conduct, a violation, for exposing her breasts during last year's St. Patrick's Day Parade in Montauk. Police have a video of Kerins was riding in a hot tub mounted in the back of a Ford pickup truck during the parade, without the top of her green and white thong bikini. According to East Hampton Police Captain Todd Sarris, "This is the first time something like this has happened at the parade."

Dan's LETTERS

UNBRIDLED CAPITALISM

Dear Dan,

After hearing Clinton and Greenspan extol American prosperity on CSPAN last night, I wondered what studies/statisitics they relied on to prove that this is the case? I can't help but feel that former Soviet dissident Valdas Anelaukas may be closer to the mark when he writes (in Discovering America As It Is) "If the American kind of unbridled capitalism is realy the best of all possible systems, how is that there is so much human suffering here in the midst of their 'paradise.'" Anelauskas has eighty pages of citations to back up his views on just how prosperous most Americans – aren't.

GOD AND DAN'S CALL?

Dear Dan,

My daughter, Jill, gave me Dan's Papers: "Mom, you may want to read this." Why not, I figured, I have a lot of time. I've watched enough TV, without knowing what I saw, I played enough solitaire 'till my eyes crossed.

Reading is good. I like Dan's Papers. I've been bed bound for a week due to a fractured ankle. I wanted to know so desperately why this happened to me.

People close to me assured that this was God's way of cueing me: "Hey, girl! this is your chance! No more excuses. WRITE, write, and just keep on writing!"

Well, I was very preoccupied with getting to the toilet, hopping on one foot, dragging the heavy cast with my injured foot, learning to maneuver the crutches and not having to bother someone to recover my remote that seemed to disappear amidst my cluttered bed.

So I put Dan's Papers on my bed and I penned a letter to my friend in Bamato, wishing her heartfelt season's greetings, then I read Dan's articles – as always I appreciate his delicious sense of humor – "...you get eel with lentil soup...eel pie with a scoop of ice cream – vanilla or eel. YUM."

I thought I should write this letter to answer God's and Dan's call.

This phenomenon took place in the basement and not on the ice (the paramedics couldn't believe it either).

And now I ask for God's forgiveness; this is the best I can produce for the present. My life story will have to wait. Maybe he'll give me another sign.

Victorian Thriller At Westhampton Performing Arts Center

The Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center will present the Queens Theatre in the Park live production of the New York State Tour of Patrick Hamilton's melodrama Angel Street. The performances will be held on Friday, February 4 at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.; Saturday, February 5 at 8 p.m., and Sunday, February 6 at 3 p.m. The two Friday performances have been scheduled in collaboration with area schools to make this high quality theatrical experience available to high school students on eastern Long Island.

The touring production of Angel Street has been made possible with special funding from the David Schwartz Foundation.

Behind the facade of the Manningham's posh London home, amid the gaslit boulevards of central London in 19 century Victorian England, a terrifying mystery looms. Is Mrs. Manningham slowly going mad? Or is her husband up to no good? The melodrama was the basis of the 1944 movie classic Gaslight, starring Ingrid Bergman and Charles Boyer. The New York debut of the play in 1941 starred Vincent Price and the show was on Broadway for four years and 1,295 performances.

Rob Urbinati, who is the Queens Theatre in the Park Associate Director, will direct Angel Street for a second time. Last season, he directed the Off-Broadway Pearl Theatre product to critical acclaim: "...everything needed in a well-made melodrama: madness, treachery, lechery, captivity, hidden treasure, chases – a marvelous romp...that holds you right at the edge of laughter for two hours." The New York Times

"Angel Street is a pulpy effective thriller, in which a suspenseful plot is made more tantalizing by an intriguing sociological and sexual subtext, said director Urbinati. "It asks us to consider the alarming possibility that we may not know the people who are closest to us."

Suzanna Frazer from Broadway's The Nerd and Stepping Out, portrays the fragile Mrs. Manningham. Yale Rep Theatre alumnus John Little will play her treacherous husband. British actor Vernon Morris plays the melodrama's inspector with Broadway veteran Patricia Guinan playing the Manningham's maid, Elizabeth. Adriana Dufay completes the cast in the role of Nancy, immortalized in the movie Gaslight by Angela Lansbury.

Tickets to Angel Street are $15, $20 and $25 and can be purchased by calling the box office at (631)288-1500, or at the Performing Arts Center, 76 Main Street, Westhampton Beach, NY. Box office hours are Tuesday-Sunday, 12-5 p.m.
